WHERE GOOD SEED OF RECOMMENDED VARIETIES MAY BE OBTAINED

O. F. McCRARY

District Agent, Northeastern District, Farmers' Cooperative Demonstration Work, North Carolina Agricultural Extension Service

Good seed occupy an important place in crop production, and especially so at this time when it is more important than ever before to produce every pound of grain or other foodstuff on a given area. However well the soil may be prepared, the crop fertilized and cultivated, the production is to a considerable degree limited by the quality of seed planted. The cost of producing good seed, or buying good seed from farmers who are producing them, is relatively small as compared to the increase in yield and quality of the crop by planting good seed.

The Branch Experiment Stations are striving to determine the best varieties of the various crops, and County Agents in the Coastal Plain section are attempting to get those farmers, who will, to produse these recognized varieties and make a specialty of good seed for market to other farmers. Quite a response has been met with in this important work, and this list is a result of the County Agents' effort to put the farmer who grows good seed in touch with the farmer who desires good seed.

The cotton seed listed here were grown under the supervision and observation of the County Agents in their respective counties. The seed are practically free from Anthracnose, none of them containing more than 1 per cent infection in the field. They were also properly guarded from infection and mixing at the gin. A farmer who is troubled with Anthracnose in his cotton should purchase Anthracnose-free seed and plant on land that did not grow cotton last year. He at least should start a seed patch with disease-free seed in order to get away from a disease that is causing a tremendous loss in this section.

Considerable quantities of cotton seed listed in the bulletin, may be obtained through the County Agents of Lenoir, Hertford, Edgecombe, and Johnston counties.

The corn listed in Edgecombe County was field-selected, and grown from field-selected seed, which was improved by the ear-to-row method. The cotton seed from the same county was improved by the plant-to-row method.

The cotton seed and seed corn are the only ones listed in this circular that have been improved by the plant-to-row method.

The County Agents of Washington, Currituck, Pasquotank, and Hyde counties can put buyers in touch with men who have large quantities of soy beans for sale.

Attention is called to the Dixie wilt-resistant cotton seed that is offered for sale.

All the other seed listed are believed to be first class and valuable for seed purposes.

Attention is particularly called to the seed offered by those farmers in the immediate vicinity of your county. The nearer home good seed may be obtained, the better. It is hoped this list may be of some service to both seller and buyer. Your coöperation is invited to make it better next year. If you are interested in producing good seed, get in touch with your County Agent and get lined up with our organized effort to get good seed planted on every farm.
